On Friday, Nov. 6, Sugar Creek moved another piece of its home to its new location.

The school's Little Free Library, which was first crated in April 2014, was transplanted into the ground at the school's new location at 740 N. Main St. Art teacher Ann Kruse repainted it to include book characters, and on Nov. 6, students Emerson Nass and Gerard Mixquitl-Vargas filled it with books.
