Teacher Justin Beirowski rubs green slime through his hair as dean of students Laura Marquardt dumps it from a bucket during a “virtual pep rally” on Friday, Oct. 2, outside of Sugar Creek Elementary School. The event, which was live-streamed to Sugar Creek students both inside the building doing K-2 in-person learning, and grades 3-5 watching from home, preceded the school’s Oct. 3 “virtual fun run.”

On the chilly morning with temperatures in the mid-40s, Sugar Creek staff sat outside to get a slime mixture dumped on them, as their students watched them from inside the school building or home through Zoom.

Led by dean of students Laura Marquardt, the pep rally celebrated the student and staff’s effort of raising $25,000 for the school. Students voted on which teachers they wanted to see get slimed on Friday, Oct. 2, as well as the color of the slime and how many times principal Todd Brunner got slimed.
